

In this Q3 issue, we highlight the latest ways we are supporting and showcasing hard-working lubrication practitioners around the world:

- sign-up list for Part 2 of the ICML 55® Standard
- invitation to visit our new Jobs Board
- guest author compares industry certifications
- call for papers
- a new language for our general brochure

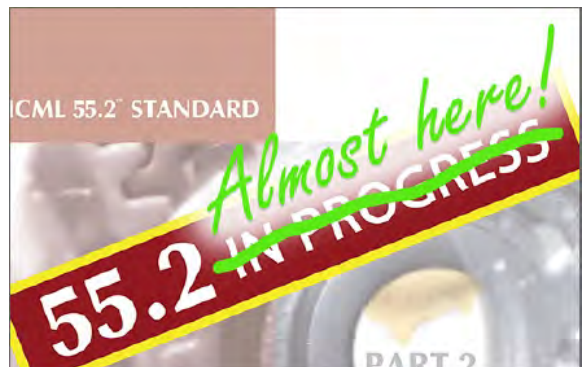

Lube on!

New Jobs Board is a practical member benefit

Visit Jobs Board

In response to recent interest from members and certified practitioners, we have set up a Jobs Board that our organizational members and training partners can populate with lubrication-related opportunities at their respective companies. The jobs board is open for public viewing, and each listing provides just enough information to help visitors decide whether to follow up with the submitting company...

ICML and Other Certifications: Which is Best?

With multiple PdM-related credentials to his name, guest author Md. Ali Qureshi of Saudi Aramco explains that each certification has its place, and then he lays out two practical reasons why he prefers ICML certifications...

OilDoc 2023 Call for Papers: Oct 31 deadline

See Guidelines

As a sponsor of this English-language conference, we remind you that OilDoc is looking for speakers with interesting case studies, personal expertise and new ideas to contribute to the program--anything about lubricants & lubrication, maintenance, fluid management, condition monitoring, or tribological trends. If your proposal is accepted, you will present to a top-class audience in Rosenheim, Germany, in May.

General ICML brochure now available in Spanish

In February 2020 we updated our general brochure that highlights all our awesome certifications and services, but subsequent pandemic lockdowns prompted us to delay translation. Now that in-person conferences are starting to reopen, we recently finished what we started for our Spanish-speaking market and took a big stack of brochures to CMC-LATAM a few weeks ago. The Spanish brochure is also available for PDF download.

El folleto principal de ICML ahora está en español

En febrero de 2020, actualizamos nuestro folleto principal, donde describimos todas nuestras increíbles certificaciones y servicios, pero los bloqueos por la pandemia nos obligaron a retrasar la traducción ese año. Las conferencias en persona están comenzando a reabrirse ahora, por lo que recientemente terminamos lo que comenzamos y llevamos una gran cantidad de folletos en español a CMC-LATAM hace unas semanas. También está disponible para descargar en PDF.
